Speakers

Katie Whyte

Toowoomba Visual Artist and Associate Producer for Makers' Shopfront and The Ideas Distillery. Katie is passionate about research and producing workshops to promote strategic thinking amongst visual artists. She uses abstract painting to draw creativity within community and corporate environments.

Shelley Pisani

Owner and Creative Producer of Makers' Shopfront and The Ideas Distillery, specialising in arts-led innovation. Shelley has 26 years of experience in the arts industry from studio artist to gallery director, curator, consultant and founding director of non-for-profit organisation Creative Regions Ltd.

Marc Harrison

New Zealand born, Brisbane based designer with an interest in sustainable design and incorporating bio-composites into his products. Marc fosters both concept design for international exhibitions alongside the creation of functional design focusing on innovative lighting, home-ware, architectural fittings and furniture.

Larine Statham

The driving force behind Crush Magazine, Editor-in-Chief Larine is an award-winning journalist with 15-years experience in news media, community consultation and business public relations. Proud owner of local PR firm, Crush Communications, she has worked across Australia and overseas, but now calls the Bundaberg Region home.

Nikki Sorbello

Managing Editor of Crush Magazine, Nikki is an accomplished journalist and marketing guru. A passionate advocate for the Bundaberg Region for decades, working across print media, private health and marketing, with qualifications in digital marketing, advertising and social media.

Rachael King

Surface Designer and Author of Pattern Pulse: featuring 100 of Australia's top surface design talent. Rachael sells her artwork on a range of homewares as Rachael King Designs label, has gift card designs with John Sands and Blue Island Press and has had a collection of fabrics with Spotlight.

Elysha Rei

Japanese-Australian visual artist and arts manager based in Brisbane. For the past 16 years Elysha has exhibited artwork and managed cultural spaces and projects across Australia and internationally. She creates paper cuts, public art and murals that honour her heritage.

Rebecca McDuff

Gallery Director for Bundaberg Regional Galleries, and former Public Programs Officer with a history of working with artists to deliver programs and events that meet the needs of the community. Rebecca is committed to promoting the work of artists from the Bundaberg region, with a passion for curating exhibitions and events.

Trudie Leigo

Trudie has worked in the arts industry for over 20 years, with experience in commercial, not for profit and public galleries. As well as managing arts projects and events of all kinds. Trudie is committed to regional arts development and works for the Central Queensland Regional Arts Services Network (CQRASN).
